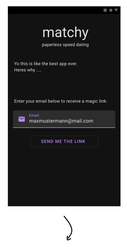
Login / Registration



- We don't differentiate between participants and organizers. All users log in / register the same way.
- We don't differentiate between signing up / logging in. They all enter their email address and receive the same link.

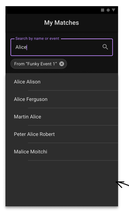
Registration: Required user account data is still missing. -> User gets stuck in "edit profile" page, until they enter the required data.

The profile can only be read by the user themself and their matches.

Login: No required user account data is missing. -> User gets sent to the home page.

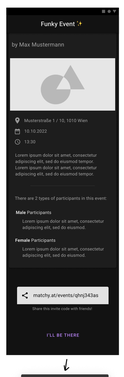
- The default view is "participant view" until you create an event.

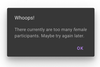
Participant view



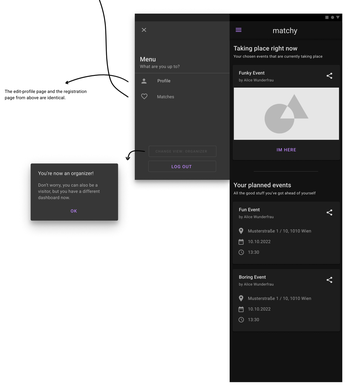
Clicking on a match will show their profile

You can access this page only by receiving an invite link from an organizer.



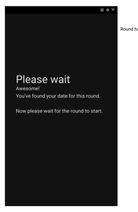


The edit-profile page and the registration page from above are identical.



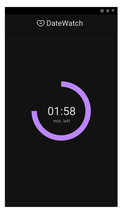
Organizer has not started the round yet.

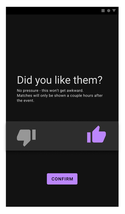
User has not found a pair yet.



Round hasn't started yet (still in break).

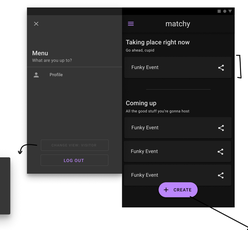
The round ends.
(This can be an endless loop until the organizer ends the Event)

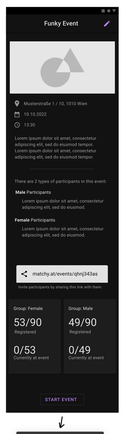




End of Event -> set by organizer

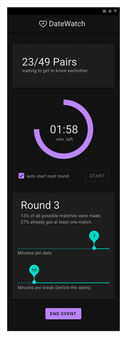
Organizer view





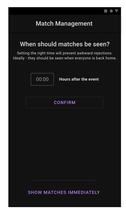
If the event is currently taking place then this button will instead show "start event"

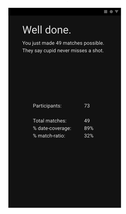
If the event has had already taken place then this button will instead show up statistics.



IMPORTANT: Breaks start before each round, not after them. They are the time necessary for you to construct your pairings.

Location must be split into seperate fields





- 100% date-coverage would mean that every single possible pairing that could have possibly been made was made.
- 100% match-ratio would mean that every single pairing was a match.
